I. Morality for Its Own Sake

A. Introduction

B. Prefatory Material from Kant’s Theoretical Philosophy
   1. The a priori/a posteriori distinction
   2. The Noumena/Phenomena distinction
   3. The limits of theoretical Reason and the postulates of practical Reason

C. Deontology
   1. “Axiological” or Value-based ethical systems
   2. Deontological or Duty-based ethical systems
      Morality as an end-in-itself in Deontological theories

D. The Good-Will as the Only Unconditionally Good/Worthy Thing
   1. All other goods are only conditionally good
   2. Happiness (as the satisfaction of desires) only conditionally good
   3. Virtue as the Worthiness of morally permissible Happiness
   4. The Good-Will and Morality as selflessly motivated, free of Incentives
II. The Moral Law

A. Morality and Motivation: The Good-Will as Respect for the Moral Law
   1. Inclination
   2. Acting merely in accordance with Duty
   3. Acting from duty
   4. Reprise: The Good-Will and Morality as selflessly motivated, free of Incentives
   5. Acting with inclination not necessarily wrong
   6. Obscurity of our true Motives when we have an Inclination and (allegedly) Respect
   7. “Radical Evil” in Kant’s late ethical Thought

B. Morality a priori
   1. Morality is necessarily binding
   2. Morality as unconditional

C. Hypothetical/Categorical Imperatives
   1. Hypothetical Imperatives are conditional (and are followed out of inclination)
   2. A Categorical Imperative would be unconditional (and could admit of respect)
   3. The Moral Law(s) must be Categorical Imperative(s)

D. [Time Permitting] Pure Practical Reason and the Categorical Imperative
   1. Pure Practical Reason or the Will (Wille) as legislator of the Categorical Imperative
   2. Autonomy v. Heteronomy
   3. The Development of Kant’s Thoughts about Freedom
   5. Positive Freedom (of the Will) and Negative Freedom (of Choice)
III. The Formulations of the Categorical Imperative and Duties

A. The First Formulation of the Categorical Imperative
   1. Maxims
   2. The Categorical Imperative as a formal Rule for the adoption/test of all Maxims
   3. FUL [the Formula of Universal Law]
   4. FLN [the Formula of the Law of Nature]
   5. The element of truth in this

B. The Categorical Imperative Generates Perfect Duties
   1. Negative or Narrow Duties must be universally followed
   2. They proscribe what we may never do
   3. Bans on Suicide, Lying/Promise Breaking

C. The Categorical Imperative Generates Imperfect Duties
   1. Positive or Wide Duties cannot be universally neglected, but they involve discretion
   2. They prescribe what we must sometimes do at some point
   3. “Ends that are also Duties”: Perfecting Oneself
   4. “Ends that are also Duties”: Promoting the Happiness of Others
   5. Why not Perfecting Others? Why not promoting the Happiness of Oneself?
   6. Kantian Ethics not strictly Altruism, but opposed to self-love

D. The Formula of Humanity
   1. Humanity as the capacity to choose to accept the moral law (or not)
   2. Objectification of one’s self or others
   3. Humanity as an end-in-itself v. the individual as an end-in-himself

E. [Time Permitting] The Formula of the Realm of Ends
   1. The “sumum bonum” or highest good
   2. Practically justified faith in God as the common author of Natural and Moral Law

F. Summation and Points of Reflection
   1. Morality is for its own sake; it’s not about you, neither for nor against your interests
   2. Morality requires sacrifice; values threaten virtue (see “Causality vs. Duty”)
   3. Morality must be absolute—the element of truth in this
FORMULATIONS OF THE MORAL LAW

First Formula

FUL The Formula of Universal Law

“Act only in accordance with that maxim through which you can at the same time will that it become a universal law” (4:421)

FLN The Formula of the Law of Nature

“So act as if the maxim of your action were to become through your will a universal law of nature” (4:421)

Second Formula

FH The Formula of Humanity (as End in Itself)

“Act so that you use humanity, as much in your own person as in the person of every other, always at the same time as end and never merely as means” (4:429)

Third Formula

FRE The Formula of the Realm of Ends

“Act in accordance with maxims of a universally legislative member for a merely possible realm of ends” (4:439)

2. Chronology adapted from Paul Guyer’s Kant (Routledge, 2006). The three critiques and the other major works that are most important for understanding Kant’s moral philosophy and their year of publication are in boldface.
1786 Publishes Metaphysical Foundations of Natural Science, essays on “Conjectural Beginnings of the Human Race” (again, against Herder) and “What Does Orientation in Thinking Mean?”; begins to serve as rector of the university; becomes external member of the Berlin Academy of the Sciences

1787 Second edition of Critique of Pure Reason

1788 Publishes Critique of Practical Reason and “On the Use of Teleological Principles in Philosophy”

1790 Publishes Critique of the Power of Judgment and “On a discovery that is to make all new critique of pure reason dispensable because of an older one” (in response to the polemic of J. A. Eberhard)

1791 Publishes “On the Failure of All Attempts at a Theodicy”

1792 Publishes essay that will become Part I of the Religion

1793 Publishes the whole of Religion within the Boundaries of mere Reason, essay “On the Adage: That may be correct in theory but it is of no use in practice”

1794 Prohibited from publishing further on religion; elected to the Academy of Sciences in St. Petersburg

1795 Publishes Toward Perpetual Peace

1796 Publishes “On the recently supercilious tone in philosophy”; gives final lecture on July 23

1797 Publishes Metaphysics of Morals and “On a presumed right to lie from philanthropic motives”

1796/7–1800/1 Works on the unfinished “Transition from the metaphysical principles of natural science to physics” (Known today as the Opus postumum; first published only in 1936–1938, and even then, out of sequence)

1798 Publishes The Conflict of the Faculties and Anthropology from a Practical Point of View

1799 August 7, Kant’s open letter against Fichte’s Doctrine of Science

1800 Publication of Kant’s Logic, edited by B. G. Jäsche (from his lectures)

1802 Publication of Kant’s Physical Geography, edited by F. T. Rink (from lectures)

1803 Publication of Kant’s Pedagogy, edited by Rink (from lectures)

1804 Dies on February 12; publication of What Real Progress has Metaphysics made in Germany since the Time of Leibniz and Wolff? Edited by Rink
