In preparing this outline, I have drawn on previous outlines of the speech prepared by Allan Gotthelf and Onkar Ghate. Dr. Ghate's outline is available with his course "A Study of Galt's Speech", which I highly recommend. In dividing the speech into five major sections derives, I follow Dr. Gotthelf's outline.

I. Introduction (1009)

- A. The state of the world as a realization of its moral ideal (1009)
- B. Galt's removal of the men of the mind who are the victims of the world's morality (1010)
- C. The strike (1010)
- D. The need to discover morality (1011)

II. The Morality of Life (1011)

- A. Traditional morality, whether mystical or skeptical, as sacrificial and anti-mind (1011)
- B. Morality as a survival requirement for a being of volitional consciousness (1012)
- C. The standard, purpose, and reward of morality (1013)
 - i. Man's life as the standard of morality (1013)
 - ii. One's own life as the purpose of morality (1014)
 - iii. Happiness as one's highest moral purpose (1014)
 - iv. The evil and irrationality of the preachers of self-sacrifice (1014)
 - v. The respective roles of choices and facts in the foundations of morality (1015)
- D. The philosophic foundations of morality, which are the ultimate basis for the strike (1015)
 - i. The metaphysical axioms (1015)
 - ii. An epistemology of reason as demanded by the axioms (1016)
- E. The morality of reason (1017)

III. The Morality of Death (1025)

A. The doctrine of Original Sin (1025)

- i. The contradiction in the doctrine (1025)
- ii. How the doctrine damns human life as such (1025)

B. The soul-body dichotomy (1026)

- i. The nature of the dichotomy (1026)
- ii. The effects of the dichotomy (1026)
- iii. The two teachers of the Morality of Death as products of the dichotomy (1027)

C. Sacrifice (1027)

- i. The meaning of the term (1028)
- ii. The immorality of sacrifice (1028)
- iii. How, in sacrificing material values, one renounces one's spirit (1029)
- iv. Sacrifice vs. the mind (1030)

D. Altruism (1030)

- i. The non-objectivity of altruism (1030)
- ii. The psychology by which altruism accepted (1031)
- iii. Worship of need (the zero) as the "secret core" of altruism—how this means that death is its standard of value (1031)
- iv. The meanness of soul created by altruism's sacrifice of morality and self-esteem (1032)
- v. Altruism's justification in a self-contradictory demand for causeless love (1033)
- vi. The consequences of altruism (1034)

IV. The Teachers of the Morality of Death (1034)

A. How mystics' attacks exploit fear of independence (1034)

B. The mystics as motivated by a desire to escape the law of identity—as sacrificing existence to their wishes (1035)

- C. The primacy of consciousness as a rebellion against causality and existence as such (1036)
 - D. The men of the mind as the unacknowledged cause of the values and the victims of the seekers of the unearned (1038)
 - E. How the mystics evade (“blank-out”) the source of the concepts they take over (1039)
 - F. The concept of “objective reality”, which the mystics aim to destroy, as the culmination of the development of a human consciousness (1040)
 - G. The doctrines by which the mystics of muscle seek to reduce men to the state of savages (1042)
 - i. Epistemological and metaphysical doctrines (1042)
 - ii. Psychological and linguistic doctrines (1042)
 - iii. Socio-economic doctrines (1043)
 - H. The world as reduced to a clash between rival gangs of power-lusting mystics (1044)
 - I. The psychology of a mystic (1044)
 - i. How the object of the mystic’s worship and fear is the consciousness of others (1044)
 - ii. How the mystic is driven to seek power over other consciousnesses in order control reality (1045)
 - iii. How death is the mystic’s goal (1046)
 - J. The impossibility of making terms with evil—with death-seeking mystics (1046)
- V. Choosing the Morality of Life (1047)
- A. How Galt, by withdrawing the mind, has brought the Morality of Death to its conclusion (1047)
 - i. How Galt reached the decision to strike (1047)
 - ii. What the men of the mind contribute to society (1048)
 - iii. The attempt by incompetents to enslave the men of the mind (1049)
 - iv. The historical significance of the strike (1050)
 - v. As a result of Galt’s action, men will die unless they recognize that their lives are made possible by the mind’s dominion over matter (1051)
 - B. People’s attitude towards morality (1052)
 - i. How people fake belief in altruism to themselves and to others (1052)
 - ii. The lethal breach between the moral and the practical (or pleasurable) (1053)
 - iii. The belief that morality is a necessary evil (1053)

- C. Why there is no room for compromise and altruism must be rejected outright (1054)
 - i. The evil attitude that there are no absolutes, which is a result of trying to practice an impracticable code (1054)
 - ii. The growth of evil when virtue is compromised (1054)
 - iii. Evasion of the state of the world as a means of avoiding the the necessity of rejecting altruism (1054)

- D. Self-esteem (1056)
 - i. The need for self-esteem and the danger of tying it to an irrational standard (1056)
 - ii. Self-doubt as caused by non-thinking, often in the attempt to preserve a self-esteem based on an irrational standard of value (1057)
 - iii. Self-esteem as the lost paradise of childhood, and of one's best moments, which can be reclaimed (1057)
 - iv. The need to take responsibility of one's consciousness by choosing to think and accepting as one's moral ideal the task of becoming a man (1058)
 - v. Pride (including the rejection of self-sacrifice) as the means to self-esteem (1059)
 - vi. Self-esteem as motivating the rational to strike against a world that doesn't value the mind (1060)

- E. Rights as the moral foundation of America, on which strikers will rebuild it (1060)
 - i. America as a product of selfish reason being destroyed by the European doctrine of sacrifice (1060)
 - ii. The moral and metaphysical source of man's rights (1061)
 - iii. The evil of a government that initiates force rather than protecting rights (1062)

- F. The relationship between the geniuses and men of lesser ability (1063)
 - i. The benefits of trade with a genius (1063)
 - ii. The motives and consequences of the mediocrities' resort to force (1065):
 - iii. The irredeemable evil of geniuses who, because they regard knowledge as impractical, reject trade and put their minds in the service of force (1066)

- G. Advice to people in the world (1066)
 - i. Go on strike (1066)
 - ii. If possible build proper communities in the wilderness (1067)

- H. Message to hidden heroes (1068)
